Residents fume over accommodation plan

by Susan Grober

Confusion, frustration and fury — those were the feelings expressed by Minden residents at a meeting last week to discuss the board of education's decision to build a new school in Haliburton village.

The meeting was held last Monday night at Archie Stouffer Elementary School to inform parents and ratepayers with the board's reasoning in making its decisions regarding accommodation.

In October, trustees voted to immediately initiate a $2.9 addition at Archie Stouffer and they also voted to seek $4.75 million in funding to build a new Kindergarten to Grade 6 school on property the board owns near J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School in Haliburton.

Once this school is built, the board plans to convert the Hodgson school to a Grade 7 to 9 facility for all students in the county.

This plan was recommended by the board's accommodation committee to alleviate overcrowding in elementary and high school classrooms.

However, there was much confusion expressed at the meeting, as many of the residents were not aware that the plan has already been approved by the board.

Others were simply angered over the decision, and felt the public should have been asked to provide input before trustees had the vote.

One person asked why the board didn't decide to build the new school in Minden instead of Haliburton, and then convert Archie Stouffer to a Grade 7-9 school.

"In my short time here, I've become aware of a friendly rivalry between Minden and Haliburton," Director of Education Brad Saunders told the crowd. He said the board had to ignore the rivalry and make a decision which would benefit the entire county.

"The village of Haliburton seems to be in the geographic centre of Haliburton County," he said, adding that it would take a long time for students who live in the eastern part of the county to travel to Minden.

Lutterworth Trustee Cheryl Murdoch said J. Douglas Hodgson is a newer building than Archie Stouffer, and that it is better equipped for Grades 7, 8 and 9 with its classrooms designed for shop and home economics classes.

Murdoch added that it would be beneficial to build a new school behind J. Douglas Hodgson school because the board already owns the property, and there should be few problems in getting approval for sewer and water capacity.

Minden resident Sandy Cole said the board could just as easily use the Archie Stouffer property. "Don't we have 94 acres right here to build on?"

One man added that the plan will create busing problems if all the Grade 7 and 8 students must travel to Haliburton.

School board Business Administrator Jim Bradley said there are already buses going to Haliburton for the Minden children who go to the high school. "It just means we'll need some more buses."

Each person at the meeting was provided with an outline of the four options the board had to choose from before deciding to build the new school in Haliburton.

Many of the residents preferred Option 1, which was to build an addition to each affected school. In this option, additions would be built to Archie Stouffer, J. Douglas Hodgson, and Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, at a total cost of $8.1 million.

"Why not go with Option 1, and keep our children here in Minden?" asked Cole.

Rather than create a debate over which village should get a new school, Cole said this option would benefit children from both communities.

Dysart Trustee and Chairperson Nancy Stinson said Option 1 would cost $450,000 more than the chosen plan. She told the residents she is aware of their concerns. "I am from Minden, and I went to school in this very school." However, she said: "If you look at all the options, costing is a major factor."

Bernie Davis, both a Minden resident and a teacher, said she has concerns with the process used by the board in making its decision.

Davis asked why a new (more on page 8)

Jack McFadden of the Ministry of Education spoke at last Monday's Haliburton County Board of Education meeting to inform parents and ratepayers of its recent decision on accommodation.

Policing committee will seek local concerns about services

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden's community policing committee will meet with village residents during the next several weeks to listen to concerns about police services.

The committee, which acts as a liaison between the public and the OPP as part of the village's community policing program, will be setting up focus groups with four different groups of residents: senior citizens, parents of school children, teenagers and business owners.

Committee members approved the plan at their meeting last Wednesday. Chairman Doug Campbell said the focus groups will allow residents to present any concerns or suggestions they might have about the provision of police services in Minden.

The committee is especially interested in talking to teenagers. Campbell said the reason problems like vandalism are associated with teenagers is because there is no place in the village for them to socialize so they often loiter downtown.

"The purpose of the focus groups is to set up a means of communication," he said. "We have to let them know we're not against them, we're for them and we can act as advocates on their behalf."

"We can't point the finger at teenagers unless we offer them something as an alternative," he said.

One suggestion has been to run a teenage social club in town, similar to the Soda Club which has been successful in giving teenagers in Stanhope a place to gather under adult supervision.

Constable Brian Brattengeier also suggested that the committee meet with younger children, such as Brownies, Cubs, Girl Guides and Scouts. "It would be nice to get them involved at a young age," he said.

Once the dates and locations of the focus groups are set, an advertisement will be placed in the The Times.

Don't blame welfare recipients Hodgson tells county council

by Susan Grober

Dysart's reeve feels people receiving social service assistance shouldn't be blamed for county council's budget increases.

"I hope we don't pass a huge tax increase and blame it on those who are less fortunate," said Reeve Chris Hodgson at last Monday's Dysart council meeting. "I feel there's enough discretionary spending that they should not blame a tax increase on social services spending."

When county council passed its 35.7 per cent budget increase last year, many councillors blamed mandated social service expenses for the hike.

Hodgson said there is enough optional spending in the county's budget that county council could cut costs rather than increase taxes for this year's budget.

He said it's understandable that so many are receiving social assistance in this time of recession, but Councillor Brian Watts pointed out that many people are abusing the system.

But Hodgson defended those who are receiving assistance after being laid-off from work.

And Deputy-Reeve Curry Bishop said many who should be on welfare won't accept it because they are too proud.

Hodgson is new to county council, as he was just voted in as Dysart's reeve during last November's election.

Stanhope hopes to revive Fun Day

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Stanhope council is hoping to revamp Fun Day for 1992.

Fun Day has been a popular annual event for the past 12 years which attracts hundreds of people to the township's community centre for a variety of events, competitions and attractions.

Last year the event was not held because council used the budget for celebrations commemorating Stanhope's 125th anniversary, and did not feel it was necessary to stage both events during the summer.

At last Wednesday's meeting, council decided to revive Fun Day this summer and said it wants to get more people involved in the planning of the day and cut down on costs associated with the event.

"I feel very strongly about this," said councillor Barb Nangle. "We should have something, but I don't think we should spend as much money on it. It could be done inexpensively."

With the state of the economy, Nangle said people need to have fun but the event would have to reflect the need for economic restraint.

"The whole idea has to be re-worked with a reduced budget," she said. "Fun Day has a lot of appeal, people want to come with their children and not spend a fortune."

Traditionally the budget for Fun Day has been about $7,500 to cover promotion, purchase of prizes and the cost of bringing in some of the events. Some of the events, like the horseshoe tournament, have registration fees which generate some revenue, and the net cost of Fun Day is usually a couple of thousand dollars.

Nangle suggested that the event could feature "old-fashioned activities" with an almost pioneer theme such as children's games, sporting tournaments and pet shows.

"It would encourage the people of the township to come together and build a sense of community but not break the budget," she said.

For the past several years Fun Day has been planned by a small group of local residents, and Deputy-Reeve Eleanor Harrison said the township has to get more people involved in the event, especially Stanhope's large seasonal population.

"We should send letters to the cottage associations asking for people to sit on the committee to help out," she said. "A lot of volunteers are needed for the event to run properly."

Reeve Fred Gardner said in past years the associations have been notified too late in the year to get involved. He suggested letters be sent out immediately to ensure that cottagers are given an opportunity to participate.

Nangle said it will require a lot of brainstorming over the next couple of months to come up with new ideas for Fun Day. "We should have started planning last September, especially since we're going to change the format," she said.

Staanworth may purchase water rights for townhouses

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

A non-profit housing development in Minden will might not have to wait for the municipality to find a new source of town water before people can move in.

Staanworth Non-Profit Housing Corporation is negotiating to buy unused water rights in the village so the 20-unit affordable housing project will be ready for occupancy.

The town's current water system is at capacity and the municipality has been told by the environment ministry that no new development will be allowed until an additional source of water is found.

Council has been trying to establish a new well for the past two years but has been delayed. The township hopes to dig a new well at the site of the two existing municipal wells located on Bobcaygeon Road across from Deep Bay Road.

Construction of the townhouse project is nearing completion but without an additional water source it was feared that Staathworth would have to wait for the new well before renting the units.

But at a meeting earlier this month Councillor Jerry Rome, who is also a member of the Staathworth board of directors, said the corporation is in the process of buying the 20 unused water rights necessary for the project to hook on to the municipal water system.

There are about 40 lots in the village with water hook-ups which aren't being used. When Staathworth buys the water rights to one of these lots, the owner has to agree that the property won't be developed until the new town well is on stream and the water system's capacity is increased.

Guild requests $24,000 from Dysart to run gallery

by Susan Grober

A $24,000 grant has been requested of Dysart council to help maintain the Rails' End Gallery as a major tourist attraction in Haliburton Village.

Last year, the gallery received a municipal grant of $18,000, an amount which hasn't increased for two years. On Monday, council agreed that during upcoming budget deliberations it would consider the increase, which is needed for a number of reasons, said Virginia Muenzel, personnel director with the Haliburton Highlands Guild of Fine Arts.

Although the Rails' End is in better financial shape than most Ontario galleries, it is in a deficit this year due to slower sales, and another slow year is expected. "We would not like to get any deeper in debt," said Muenzel.

Also, the Ontario Arts Council, which funds all gallery shows, has had its funding drastically cut by the provincial government, so "we in turn can expect the same," said Muenzel.

All gallery costs have risen, especially hydro, which will be about $7,400 this fiscal year, as opposed to $5,806 in '89/90.

"The gallery is a charming, historical, drafty building," said Muenzel. Although the Guild has made the effort to caulk around all windows and wall cracks in the Waiting Room Gallery, it could not afford to rip down and insulate the walls, as suggested by an Ontario Hydro representative.

In December 1990, the Guild was forced to permanently lay-off its secretary/receptionist, so members would like to give curator Holly Hutchison and bookkeeper Norma Douglas "some kind of raise to show our appreciation for the extra work they've taken on," said Muenzel. "They are excellent at their jobs. We don't want to lose them."

Along with the fees received from the Guild's 350 members, money to support the gallery is raised through such projects as an art auction, Christmas sale, summer sale and Winning Wednesdays draw.

"We are working to improve or replace those fundraisers that did not succeed," Muenzel told council. "In short, the Board of Directors, and Guild members at large are doing everything possible to earn as much money as possible to support ourselves."

Muenzel said the Guild understands the poor state of the economy. "We deal with it everyday, like every business in Haliburton..."

"We know that in order to justify our fund request, we must prove to you that we are a very integral part of the tourist attractions in Dysart."

Over the last four years, "news of our excellence as a small town gallery is spreading," said Muenzel. "Now, not only do artists ask to show their work here, but the touring public have put the Rails' End Gallery on their list of places they must see."

In closing, Muenzel invited each councillor to attend the gallery's show of "the broad spectrum of excellent art created by our own Guild members," which will run between February 6 and March 7.

Parents wary of possible problems with junior high school couldn't be built in an outlying area such as Dorset, West Guilford, or Carnarvon.

"I think people are interested in having the school someplace else in the county," she said.

Some parents didn't like the idea of creating a junior high school. They feel students in Grades 7-9 are going through a transition period, and it could create problems if they are lumped together in one building.

But Saunders maintained the board will attempt to utilize area teachers who work well with these age groups at the junior high school.

And one woman said she attended junior high, and found it to be "a terrific experience... they were the best years of my life."

Also at the meeting were two Ministry of Education representatives, Gloria Brooks and Jack McFadden.

McFadden said the board's chosen option seemed to be a "very strong and sound idea."

"I'm not here to speak for or against any particular plan," he said. "But I think the plan set forward makes a lot of sense. Mind you, I don't have the money in the car with me."

Those who missed last Monday's meeting may wish to attend a second one being held tonight (Monday) at 7:30 in the gymnasium at J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School.

Archie Stouffer expansion tops board's priority list

by Susan Grober

Last Monday night's accommodation meeting provided local parents and ratepayers with some insight on the upcoming Archie Stouffer Elementary School expansion.

The first action the board will take to alleviate overcrowding is to build a $2.9 million addition to Archie Stouffer Elementary school, consisting of eight classrooms, a double gymnasium, and the conversion of the existing gymnasium to a library.

During the meeting, held in the gymnasium of the school, Lutterworth Trustee Cheryl Murdoch recalled a similar meeting held when the board was forced to move primary students to the former Dollo's IGA building on Main Street.

"We stood here four years ago saying why our kids would be going to the IGA — now we're here again to say why we're bringing them back," she said.

In order to move the students back into the school, the board has been requesting funds from the education ministry since 1988, said Murdoch.

Finally, in the spring of 1991, the ministry agreed to contribute $750,000 to construction costs for the building project.

The board must cover the rest of the cost, and Murdoch offered the following to outline where the money will come from: the board has $500,000 from the 1990 sale of the board's Lakeview school in Haliburton; $28,000 a year in rent now being paid for the IGA building will be saved; debentures for J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School in Haliburton will soon be paid off; and the depressed economy means the cost of labour and construction materials is substantially lower than usual.

"It's time for making plans to bring the children back," she said.

Bulletin board re-location causes upset

'We have no right to say whether it should be there or not,' says OPP

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden council's decision to move the community bulletin board has drawn criticism from the village's community police committee.

The bulletin board used to sit on the south side of South Water Street near the post office, but in November council was told that the owner of the property upon which the board was located wished to have it moved.

After considering a variety of alternate locations council decided to have to board moved to Main Street beside the community police building.

The site was chosen because of its central location, where the bulletin board would be seen by residents, and because of access to hydro to power the display lights in the board.

Soon after the board was installed at the new location, community police committee chairman Doug Campbell registered a complaint with council.

Campbell said he was upset with the move because he feels the board takes away from the look of the police building and he was also concerned that the sign posed a danger to pedestrians because it sticks out into the sidewalk.

Campbell also feels council should have consulted with the police committee before making the decision to relocate the sign in front of the building.

At last Wednesday's police committee meeting, Campbell presented his concerns to the members.

The committee did not object to a community bulletin board being located at the police building, but feel that the bulletin board should be clad in iodized brown to match the exterior of the police office and should fit in the space between the building and the store beside it.

Council recently discussed the location of the board with OPP Sergeant Steve Adam. Adam said while the building is used by the OPP, it is owned by the municipality.

"The police building is provided for our use, but it belongs to you," said Adam. "The sign doesn't interfere with our use of the building so we have no right to say whether it should be there or not," he said.

Berry said council has not yet made a decision about the sign's final resting spot and that the alternatives will be looked at.

Shoreline speed signs requested

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The following issues were discussed at the meeting of Stanhope council held last Wednesday.

Speed signs

Council received a letter from the Halls and Hawk Lakes property owners association asking that new speed limits signs be posted on both lakes reflecting new federal regulations about speed limits near shorelines.

In August the federal transportation ministry amended the Canada Shipping Act, imposing a 10 km/h speed limit on within 30 metres (98 feet) of the shoreline.

This regulation does not apply to rivers which are less than 100 metres wide, canals, buoyed channels or waters that already have a shoreline speed limit.

In the letter to council,

Stanhope briefs

Robert Hartry, vice-president of the Halls and Hawk Lakes association, said the association intends to do as much as possible to promote awareness and compliance of the new regulation and asked council to provide signs posting the new 10 km/h speed limit.

Hartry said the association has identified six "critical" areas where it would like to see signs posted before the summer boating season begins.

The association has offered to install the signs and also to help offset the cost of purchasing the signs if necessary.

Reeve Fred Gardner suggested that council find out where the association wants the signs posted and also to get an estimate of the total number of signs needed in the township.

He also said signs could be posted at each of the boat launches to inform boaters about the regulation.

Hawk Lake landfill

The Ministry of Natural Resources has offered to simplify the sale of property to Stanhope township for the expansion of the Hawk Lake landfill site.

The municipality is purchasing 40 acres of Crown land for the landfill expansion to extend the life of the facility.

Under the original agreement, the MNR agreed to sell the township three separate parcels of land.

Two of the parcels, totalling 20 acres in area, would be sold for $750 each and a further 20-acre buffer zone would be sold at the appraised market value of $4,700.

In a new offer, the ministry will combine the sale into a single transaction with a $9,200 price tag.

Although the initial land cost is higher, the township would only have to pay for one survey instead of three, would have unrestricted use of the land and would also acquire a gravel pit which is located near the landfill site.

The amalgamated land deal could also be settled in a shorted period of time and the sale has to be finalized by the end of March in order for the municipality to qualify for a 75 per cent subsidy from the environment ministry.

On the road again

Joanne and Rob Reid reach for the stars with Harmony Road

by Susan Grober

The first time Joanne Reid sang in front of an audience, she was filled with sheer terror.

It was during the early '80s at the Beaconbrook Hotel in Haliburton, and she was encouraged by a musician friend, named Rob, to get up on stage.

"I shook really bad that first time," Joanne says from her home in Minden.

Ah, how things have changed. Today Joanne is married to Rob, and together they form Harmony Road, a popular band which performs for crowds of up to 400 people, in bars across the province.

Anyone who goes to see Harmony Road perform at Minden's Dominion Hotel this weekend shouldn't be surprised if Joanne dances on the tables, or getting her audience to sing along as she performs.

"We have seven years of experience of playing on the road, in every bar we can get to," says Joanne. "Now, to be up on stage, it's just like home."

Most locals are familiar with Harmony Road, but many don't realize how far the band has progressed over the years.

These days, the Reids spend about 30 weeks of the year on the road. Already, their calendar is filled with bookings in such wide-ranging areas as London, Chatham, Brampton, Trenton, Timmons, Hamilton, and Thunder Bay (not to mention dates at the Dominion Hotel, this weekend and in July, and at the PineStone Inn in June).

The really big news for the couple is that next month they will head to a Toronto studio to record four songs which haven't been previously recorded by other artists.

"The songs were written by two men in Nashville, and one of them has previously written songs for (popular country singer) Reba MacIntyre," says Joanne.

"I'm so nervous," she adds. "Rob has been in a recording studio before, but I haven't."

It's an exciting time for the Reids, who have been performing together since 1985.

Rob Reid has been playing music since he was 12 years old. Born in Scotland, his family moved to Toronto when he was five. It was at that age that he first listened to the band that would change his life.

"The Beatles got me into music," he says. "When I was younger, they were the only band I listened to, just Beatles, Beatles, and more Beatles."

In school he played trumpet and violin, and at home he loved to sing. The only problem was, he wasn't very good.

"Music wasn't easy for me," he says. "I always had to work at it."

As the years went by, Rob's musical tastes expanded to such performers as Cat Stevens, Harry Chapin, Neil Young and Simon and Garfunkel.

As he worked harder on his own talents, Rob eventually became a full-time musician, and has played with a few Toronto bands.

Joanne actually met Rob when he was performing solo at the Beaconbrook, in July of 1984.

"I went out for my birthday, and my cousin who plays guitar knew Rob, so we were introduced," she says. "I had no plans of being a singer at all. But we started dating, and he heard my when I was singing my kids to sleep. He said I had a good voice, and should try singing in front of an audience."

For her first attempt at performing, Joanne sang two country songs: Crying My Heart Out Over You and Blue Eyes Crying in the Rain.

"Rob was just doing middle of the road songs, and he told me I had a great country voice, but he figured all I could sing was country," says Joanne. "So I bought a 45 of Cyndi Lauper's song Time After Time, and worked on it for about 12 hours."

"I told her she couldn't do it," says Rob. With perseverance, Joanne mastered the tune and proved him wrong. Now she performs a variety of different music styles.

Whether someone in the audience wants to hear Patsy Cline's Sweet Dreams, Kenny Loggins' Footloose, or The Beatles' Back in the USSR, the Reids are prepared.

They have about 350 songs in their repertoire, in the categories of country, popular rock, and oldies from the '50s and '60s.

Rob plays guitar on stage, and he has pre-recorded all the other instruments using a computer keyboard.

"It takes about two or three hours a song," he says. "I have to mix them and make sure all the volumes are right."

Although it takes a lot of work to record the music, it's more feasible for the couple to work this way rather than deal with the hassles and higher costs of touring with other band members.

Even though Rob does the tracks himself, the Reids have received some flak for using pre-recorded music during their performances.

Still, once they get on stage and perform, Harmony Road usually manages to win over its audience.

Part of the reason for the band's popularity is that Joanne and Rob like to make their audience a part of each performance.

"We do better in big bars, because we're a dance band," says Rob. "We get their energy, and they get ours. It just goes back and forth."

After watching one of Joanne's energetic performances, it's hard to imagine that, in the beginning, she never had dreams of being a star.

"I sang in the church choir, and I sang alone at home, or with my father playing the guitar," she says. "When I was 14 years old, two of my girlfriends and I decided we would go down to the park gazebo and pretend to be singers.

Even though they spend more than 30 weeks of the year performing on the road, Rob and Joanne Reid of Harmony Road make their home in Minden.

"But to really think that I'd go ahead and do that for a living, I never thought that way."

"She was extremely meek, and very, very, very shy in those days," says Rob.

It wasn't easy for the Reids to get where they are today.

"We weren't doing very well economically until two or three years ago," says Joanne. "It's just started to become profitable."

Rob heartily agrees. "In the beginning, almost every penny we made went back into the business, for clothes, hair, equipment, promo stuff, and expenses while living on the road."

"To anyone who considers a career in music, I'd say you have to love it," says Joanne, who is well aware of all the frustrations involved. "You'll knock on doors, and people will slam them in your face."

Since hiring a manager, Sid Stewart, last June, the band has seen many changes.

"A manager directs you, molds you, shapes you, and puts money into the act," explains Rob.

It was Stewart who picked out the 12 songs on the couple's current cassette, which features such cover songs as The Judds' Grandpa, Richie Valens' La Bamba, and Bette Midler's The Wind Beneath My Wings, recorded live at the Windsor Tavern in Timmins.

Stewart also arranged for Harmony Road's upcoming recording session. And, because the band now belongs to the Canadian Country Music Association, any of the four songs could be nominated for awards.

With their careers on an upswing, Joanne and Rob are enthusiastic about what's in store for the future.

In discussing their plans, Rob is very practical. "First we have to get the recording done, and then see what happens," he says.

Joanne would love for the songs to get some radio play, and hopes to someday perform on such television shows as Tommy Hunter, Anita Davis, and the Family Brown. She's also not afraid to shoot for the stars.

"My biggest dream, my ultimate," she says, "would be to sing at the Grand Ol' Opry."

Asking to be heard

Last Monday, the Haliburton County Board of Education made good on its promise to hold a public meeting to discuss the proposed expansion of schools in Minden and Haliburton villages.

During the course of the meeting it became clear that while trustees are willing to discuss their decision, they are not prepared to let public opinion sway them from their chosen course.

Although we elect our school board representatives to make the necessary decisions affecting the education of our children, the issue of accommodation should never have been decided without some form of public consultation.

The construction of new schools and the busing of students from one community to another goes beyond the normal day-to-day operation of the board and the outcome will have a profound effect on Minden and Haliburton villages.

The fact that accommodation became a major issue during the November elections, despite the fact that an option had already been chosen, is an indication that the public wanted input into the decision-making process.

Before any final decision was made, the board should have presented the four options to the public and taken into account, along with costs and educational considerations, the preferences of residents from across the county.

Surely the people who elect the trustees, and who will end up paying the lion's share of construction costs, deserve more than to have a ready-made solution handed to them on a platter.

By and large, the residents of this county have been well served by the trustees on the board of education and there is no indication of any attempt by the board members to make a decision which is not in the best interests of their constituents. However, people are becoming increasingly intolerant of governments, at any level, which appear to disregard the wishes of the population when tackling important issues, and they are sending a strong message that they want to be consulted.

The school accommodation issue is not a result of some mythical rivalry between the villages of Minden and Haliburton, it is the legitimate expression of the frustration felt by residents who want more input into the deliberations which affect their lives.

Oh, Billy boy, thou shouldst be scribbling at this hour.

Can you imagine what Shakespeare would do if he was alive in 1992? No need to rummage around in dusty historical tomes for tales of Danish, Scottish or Roman regicide. The late twentieth century has enough simmering pots (and plots) to keep a Shakespeare writing with both hands around the, er, sundial.

year alone:

A jerry-built false front saloon called Meech Lake collapsed in the dirt. And Canada shivered, fractured and threatened to fall apart.

The Soviet Union did fall apart. What Ronald Reagan called the 'Evil Empire' disappeared as if by magic. Two philosophical talismans by the names of Marx and Lenin, whose brooding visages presided over nearly a century of misery for hundreds of millions, went into the garbage chute of history.

Then there was Desert Storm, the 'Mother of All Wars'. It turned out to be shorter than the average Prairie blizzard. And who can forget...

But enough. Lets face it — if Shakespeare was alive today he would probably be living in a garret with quilted walls, chewing Valium like popcorn and prancing around in a dinner jacket that buttons up at the back. We've had

Parent disappointed with school board's handling of plan

Editor:

I was very disappointed with the meeting held on Monday evening by the Board of Education with the public at Archie Stouffer School. In my opinion, this meeting was only held so that the Board could protect themselves and go on record as actually having met with the public to tell them, "This is the way it's going to be," with no input from the taxpayers or parents necessary!

I would think that with an issue as important as the future accommodations of our students, they would have had the foresight to have some public meetings between the communities to allow for their participation before making the final decision on this matter.

As a taxpayer and parent I am very sad and angry that the Board in their wisdom would act on such an important and sensitive issue without consulting the parents only to tell them the decision has been made!

I am positive other people at the meeting had the same feelings as myself and would hope they make the Board of Education aware of their feelings.

A copy of this letter has been sent to the Board.

Student has accident day after buying car

Editor:

A letter to the person who sold my 16 year old son an old gas guzzler, a big black Buick Park Lane.

You are probably very proud of yourself, having sucked a substantial amount of money out of a student, for a car that even a working person would not want. This was money that was badly needed for his education. It is also unbelievable how anybody could be so stupid and irresponsible to turn a car over to a completely inexperienced driver on January 14, the day of a bad snowstorm.

I am sure you are not interested to hear that he could have killed himself and others in a dangerous accident he had on January 15.

Dorset acid rain report

The following report on precipitation events was recorded at the Ministry of Environment acid rain testing station in Dorset and compiled by Environment Canada.

This report covers the period of January 5 to January 11, 1992.

January 8, 1 cm of snow with a pH level of 4.2.

The airpath was from southern Ontario and southern Michigan.

January 9, 1 cm of snow with a pH level of 3.7 from southern Ontario and southern Michigan.

Environment damage is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7.

INSIGNIFINEWS a relief from world turmoil

too much history lately. A news overload.

We need a break.

Accordingly, as a public service I am pleased to offer up my brand new information service, INSIGNIFINEWS. A timely round-up of actual news stories from around the world that got passed over in the heat of the past few months.

All items guaranteed 100 percent true...and utterly inconsequential.

Item One: Singapore bans chewing gum. It's official. If you visit Singapore with a couple of packs of Trident in your pocket you better declare 'em at the border. Otherwise you could find yourself spread-eagled on a Customs Shed floor with a gum-sniffing German Shepherd standing on your sternum. The ban is a result of an eight year old study "chewing gum pollution" by the Singapore government.

The study found that chewing gum "has caused train disruptions as it prevents train doors from closing." Accordingly, anybody who knowingly imports chewing gum into Singapore faces a fine up to 10,000 Singapore dollars AND one year in Singapore jail.

You don't want to know what Singapore does to drunk drivers.

Item Two: In a display of UFO one-upmanship, Soviet UFOlogist Sergei Bulantsev asserts that extraterrestrials who visit (what used to be) the USSR are "better looking" than the non-earthlings that touch down in North America from time to time.

I'd counter Mister Bulantsev's claim with the old Western cliché that beauty is in the eye of the beholder.

Especially having seen some of the members of the USSR Women's Swim Team.

Item Three: The 16th Annual Spamput Championship is over and the winner is...Mark Carey, of Austin, Texas, who managed to hurl twelve gooey ounces of meat-like substance (Spam), an incredible 60 feet. Mark lost out in the Spam-calling contest. That was won by a leather-lunged doctor from Dallas who hit 110 decibels with his tympanic-membrane shredding "HEEEEEEEERE, SPAMMY, SPAMMY, SPAMMY!"

Speaking of leather lungs, let me paraphrase old Owl-Eyes, Knowlton Nash, and say: "AND THAT'S INSIGNIFINEWS. G'D NIGHT."

Tipping fees must soon be charged at landfills

by Susan Grober

The following matters were discussed in brief during the Monday, January 13 meeting of Dysart council.

Fun club for kids

A group of parents have started a youth group in West Guilford.

Councillor Brian Watts told council the parents hope to fashion the group after the successful Soda Club run for young people out of the Stanhope Firefighters' Hall.

"It's a good way of keeping the kids off the streets and away from booze," Watts said of the group, which had its initial general introduction meeting at the West Guilford Community Centre last Friday.

Membership will be $5, and no more than $10 per family. Also, there may be a possible weekly entrance fee of a quarter.

An executive committee chosen by members will organize some of the group activities. Parents are asked to get involved either by supervising or by teaching crafts such as ceramics, chocolate-making, or stained glass.

For more information, contact organizers Shirley Johnston, 754-4208, or Patty Morrison, 754-3710.

In the dumps

Tipping fees must be imposed at the Haliburton Landfill Site, according to an annual report submitted by landfill attendant Sam Charlton and reviewed by council at its last meeting.

Last year, more than 6,000 tires were disposed of at the site, and Charlton reported to council that number is too much in one year.

Based on a cost estimate included with the report, it could cost $18,000 for removal of the tires alone.

New legislation in 1992 will require tipping fees and removal of tires, stated the report.

Also, all sites must be gated and manned in 1992. Other changes have made metal pick-up very costly, council learned.

Waste watch

Councillor Robert Heinze requested that the recycling bin used by Fort Irwin area people be moved from its present site.

"Most of the time, especially in the summer, it gets filled pretty quick," said Heinze. "It's pretty unsightly, because it gets full so fast. Everybody's into recycling, so it overflows."

Not only is the bin filling up with recyclables, but some people are putting regular garbage in it as well, said Heinze.

"I don't want to discourage recycling by placing the bin in a bad spot," said Heinze, but he still feels the bin should be moved.

Heinze suggested the bin be placed on an unopened road allowance across from Peter's Restaurant. He said the president of the Haliburton Lake Cottagers' Association agreed to this site because it "keeps it close to Fort Irwin, and keeps it out of the way."

Councillor Brian Watts, who heads the municipality's waste management committee, said it's been his experience that recycling bins "are far better at a dump site than at a private site."

He also offered a reminder that the bin was requested by the people of Fort Irwin, and that they should be using it properly. "I know that it's unsightly, but someone is going to have to take responsibility for it."

Councillor Lloyd Leadbeater said the situation will probably get worse if the bin is moved to an unsupervised area away from the landfill site.

Clerk Donna McCallum said the Ministry of the Environment has been coming out with so many new restrictions that the matter is probably out of council's hands.

Watts suggested the area be looked at before council make any decision.

Calling all cabs

A Haliburton resident requested permission to start up a taxi business from his home at Highway 118 and Sunnyside Drive.

Basil Boice told council he would like to start out the business with three cars, "and expand when things get rolling."

He agreed to follow municipal regulations which include operating the business 24 hours a day, having a photo of the driver in each car, providing a car in the area at all times, carrying $1 million in insurance, and having each car inspected twice a year.

Boice said he has previous experience driving and dispatching in Toronto. Also, he plans to relocate the business outside of his home once it gets underway.

There are presently two cab companies operating in the area, but Boice said he has seen a need for increase taxi service.

Also on the agenda to request his own taxi service was Raymond Shaw, but Shaw did not appear at the scheduled time.

windows, 4' x 6' white.

Assaults

Preston Joseph Mallaley, 34, of Minden has been charged with Assault with a Weapon, Assault and Causing a Disturbance after police investigate an occurrence on January 11. Mallaley was arrested and held for a Bail Hearing where he was held in custody.

In an unrelated matter, Gary Handlen, 44, of Anson St. Minden has been kept in custody after a bail hearing at Lindsay January 13. Handlen was arrested on January 12 after police investigated a complaint of assault. As a result Handlen was charged with Assault and Mischief.

Snow vehicle accident

On Sunday, January 12 at approx. 4:30 p.m. on a private road in Dudley Township a 13-year-old received minor injuries when the snow vehicle she was operating collided with a tree. The accident occurred when the driver took a curve to wide and dropped off the road.

Operating Conditions

Conditions for the operation of snow vehicles have not improved over the past few weeks. The warm weather and addition of snow has caused the dangerous ice conditions to become even more hazardous. Do not ride on waterways in Haliburton County.

Minden Sled Dog Derby....New Dates February 15 & 16

Novices win two lose one in tournament

On Friday, January 10, the Minden OMHA Novices faced off against Bobcaygeon for the beginning of a two-day tournament. When the boys skated onto the ice, we could tell they were all pumped up for this game, and an exciting game it was.

The first six minutes of the game were end-to-end action with both teams playing their positions, passing the puck, and each player trying to score or assist that first goal.

Bobcaygeon scored first, but that didn't bring us down and by the end of the first period Gaten Davis broke out of his own end and went all the way to score our first and tying goal. (1-1)

The second period was much the same as the first and just as exciting. Our OMHA boys played as a team — Danny Nelson scored another goal to break the tie.

The third period was pretty nerve-wracking, with it being a close game and the score sitting at 2-1 for Minden. Bobcaygeon tried their hardest to tie the game, but nothing could get by our defencemen and if it did, goalie Shane Walker did his job.

With only five minutes remaining in the final period, Minden players rushed the net on a loose puck and scored their third goal. Goal scored by Josh Shaw assisted by Jarrett Rowden.

That goal was our insurance marker of the game. Bobcaygeon tried hard but Minden over-powered them, winning 3-1. MVP went to Danny Nelson.

Early Saturday morning Minden faced off in their second game against East Gwillimbury, a team we never played before. Again the Minden team played great hockey. Minden won the face-off, passing the puck down to the opponent's end and was on the scoreboard 40 seconds into the game. Goal score by Gary Kernohan assisted by Danny Nelson and Paul Daniels. With only minutes left in the first period Gaten Davis scored the second goal. Assisting him was Trevor Cole.

During the second period there was still lots of action from one end to the other. East Gwillimbury never gave up trying to get on the scoreboard and again our defencemen and other goalie Mitch Johnston did their jobs, but finally after endless attempts. East Gwillimbury scored twice to start the third period at a 2-2 tie. In most games we've played, our boys got disappointed when the other team scored to tie it up. But coach Barry yelled and said: "That's okay, we've got time." The crowd started cheering and the boys kept playing hockey. With only five minutes remaining in the last period Minden scored, not once, but twice to make it 4-2. Goals scored by Gaten Davis assisted by Rich Kinsmen. Second goal by Paul Daniels assisted by Danny Nelson.

East Gwillimbury pulled their goalie with four minutes remaining. In the last three minutes Minden received a penalty which resulted in a penalty shot. The crowd was shocked but we calmed down and gave the goalie Mitch Johnston our total confidence. They never got a chance to shoot for Mitch played the player and followed the puck, stopping it before he got a chance to shoot. The whole team raced out to their goalie. With minutes left in the game, East Gwillimbury pulled their goalie but that didn't work. Minden was on a winning streak and nobody was going to take this win away. Final score 4-2, Minden.

Our third game was against Bowmanville, another team we never played before and Shane Walker was in net this time and going into this game he knew he had to keep in mind that high and fast shots were going to come his way.

Josh Shaw lets fly with a shot that will be the only goal the Minden Novices scored against Bowmanville in a tournament game January 10. The visitors defeated the Monarchs 5-1.

The Bowmanville team is a very strong but Minden never gave up and they did not back down.

We lost 5-1 with a goal scored by Josh Shaw. Our team was tired but not disappointed for their two wins put them in the finals with a total of 23-and-a-half points. Surprisingly our opponents were Bowmanville again. Having a three hour rest the boys started the fourth and final game with great anticipation. Catching Bowmanville off guard, Minden scored the first goal making it 1-0. Goal scorer was Josh Shaw assisted by Gaten Davis.

Minden surprised Bowmanville in this game. They thought they were going to have an easy win, but they didn't get one. Our boy's played right until the end and had lots of opportunities to score more but couldn't get it by. Bowmanville scored two more goals, ending the championship game 3-1 for Bowmanville.

When the game was finally over, Minden's spectators gave our Novices a well deserved standing ovation. They might not have won the game but to us they were winner's. M.V.P. honours were given to Danny Nelson (twice), Gaten Davis and Jarrett Rowden, but as far as we are concerned each and everyone on this OMHA team were M.V.P.'s. Our M.V.P.'s are Mitch Johnston, Shane Walker (Goalies), Jarrett Rowden, Gary Kernohan, Josh Shaw, Gaten Davis, Danny Nelson, Paul Daniels, Trevor Cole, Trevor Woods, Rich Kinsmen. Missing from tournament was Ashly Pettis. Games well done boys. Our play-offs are starting so come out and give all our Monarchs your support.

Eliminated in semi-finals

Redmen win 3 at Snofest tournament

The HHSS Redmen made it to the B division semi-final play-offs in the Snofest tournament held last weekend in Peterborough. The team was eliminated from the tournament by Victoria Home Park Collegiate by a 7-2 margin.

The Redmen won their first two games, defeating St. Mike's of Toronto 6-2, and King Academy 3-2. Their first defeat came at the hands of Denis Morris when they were edged out of a tie at the two minute mark of the final frame.

The loss pushed the Redmen into the consolation round where they shut out C. Leger Collegiate 4-0 and the were eliminated by Victoria Home Park in the semi-final game.

Mark Morissette led the scoring for the Redmen in the tournament, scoring four goals, three of those in the King Academy contest. He picked up all the tallies in that game with brother Kevin Morissette being credited with the lead assist on all three markers.

Mark notched two goals in the five games, but was instrumental in setting up other players, assisting on a total of eight goals.

Other marksmen included Greg Stamp with three, one unassisted, and two assists; Jamie Dollo with three and two assists; and Derek Wilson with a pair and an assist.

Single goals were scored by Jason Billings, Ray Cook, Bill Bradley and Jeff Black.

Todd McCracken and Peter Brohman shared the goaltending responsibilities.

The Redmen also picked up a win and a tie in regular schedule action since the new year. On January 6 they defeated Lakefield 6-2, and a day later tied Fenelon Falls 2-2.

High school hockey takes a break this week as the best from area communities gather in Peterborough Friday evening for an All-Star game.

The Redmen will be represented by five players in that contest. Among the roster from HHSS will be centre Kevin Morissette, left wing Mark Morissette, centre Jason Billings, right wing Jamie Dollo and defense Ray Cook.

The Redmen have four more games after the All-Star break. The next home game is January 29 against Thomas Stewart Secondary School of Peterborough.

Double wins stretch Novice C streak to 7

The Ontario Hydro Novice "C" are now undefeated in seven games with back to back wins against Haliburton.

On Tuesday, January 7 at Minden the game was fast paced with plenty of scoring opportunities for both teams.

Minden opened the scoring at 8:42 of the first on a goal by Jamie Colliss unassisted. Andy Kinsman gave Minden a 2-0 lead at 4:36 in the second period taking a pass at the blue line from Adam Tomlinson, skating around the defence to score. Haliburton tied the game with two before the period ended.

The boys spirit of wanting to win did not dampen as Minden came back to take the lead at 7:13 of the third period when Jamie Colliss scored his second goal on a nice set-up from Nichole Mitchell. Then at 5:44 Adam Tomlinson from Graham Neave gave Minden their two goal lead back. Haliburton came within one at 3:01 but could not get closer. Final score 4-3 for Minden.

The next day Minden travelled to Haliburton. This game was a slower pace with the Minden boys playing like they know how. They played their positions and the defence did not give Haliburton many scoring opportunities.

Minden took an early 2-0 lead on two goals by Nicolas Mitchell. The first goal came on a nice set-up from behind the net from Andy Kinsman. The second was from Nicolas's backhand on a three-way passing from Andy Kinsman and Jamie Colliss.

The second period Haliburton scored their only goal of the game at 6:33 then with 46 seconds left in the period Minden took a 3-1 lead on a goal by Jamie Colliss from Nicholas Mitchell.

The third period was all Minden. Ben Carpenter scored on a sprawling effort in front of the net. Never giving up gives him credit for this goal. Then at 3:25 Ben scores his second goal on a perfect pass from the face off circle from Jordan Campbell to Ben standing in the slot. Ben scores to give Minden a satisfying 5-1 victory. A standing ovation from the parents for a victory well earned.

All members of the team get credit for these two victories and not just the guys that score. They include Greg Vanderlip, Justin Walker, Stephen Johnson, Lance Aggett, Graham Neave and goaltender Mark Snell.

Crime of the week

Thieves break into 10 Haliburton businesses

Between the 28th of December and the 2nd of January, 92 at least 10 businesses have been broken into in the village of Haliburton. They include the Harvest Restaurant, Cordell's, Sears Catalogue store, Perfect Prints, Intra Town & Country Travel, Ministry of Natural Resources Fire Base, Haliburton Legion, Haliburton Curling Club, Austin Fuels and Haliburton Construction. Attempts at entry were made at other businesses including Northland Sales, Paulette's Gifts and Nancy's Flower Shop. Stolen during these break and enters were cash and some tools.

If you have any information about this or any other crime, call Lindsay Crimestoppers at 1-800-563-TIPS (8477). You will never be asked to reveal your identity or to testify in court. If your information leads to an arrest Lindsay Crimestoppers will pay up to $1000.00 in cash.

(NOTE: Crimestoppers liaison for Minden OPP is Constable Mike Maybee.)

Double D Catering defeats The Times 5-3

Kountry Double D Catering, Sid Stamp Fuels and Hartwick Construction all came up winners Monday in the Minden Men's Recreational Hockey League games. Double D defeated The Times 5-3. Stamps edged Home Hardware 6-5 and Hartwick scored a convincing 7-3 win over Westside Jug City.

Scott Hamilton picked up three goals as the Caterers dominated The Times in the opening game. Tom Haley and Rick Beeney added the other two.

Doug Allison notched a pair for The Times while Kelly

Giles added the single.

Duane Lennie was in net for Double D while Andrew Burk was The Times netminder.

All but one of the six Stamp goals came in the opening frame with Home Hardware battling back from the five goal deficit in attempt to salvage the game. Despite a four goal run in the final frame, it was not enough to overtake the Stamp edge.

Two goals and an assist by Doug Schell led the Stamp effort. Single went to Andy Campbell, who also assisted on three, Larry Sawyer with a pair of assists, Kim Colliss with a single assist and Paul Walker. Dave Pettes and Ted Vasey each assisted on a goal.

Dean Hewitt notched two goals for Home Hardware in their unsuccessful run for the victory. Also scoring were Gary Harrison with an unassisted effort and an assist, one and one from Ken Barry and a single off the stick of Daryl Ward. Louie Reynolds and Dave Rogers each got the nod for a pair of assists.

Kevin Smith was in net for Stamps while Terry Crowe guarded the Home end.

A hattrick for Sid MacKeigan led the Hartwick victory over Westside in the final game Monday night. MacKeigan also assisted on two other markers to help the seven goal effort. Jeff Stamp added to markers to the total, both unassisted while singles went to Dave Dollo and Jason Stamp. Assists were credited to Jeff and Jason Stamp each with a pair, and a single for Dave Dollo.

Dave Hartwick scored a single, unassisted goal for Jug City while Lorne Burgess and Jeff Howe got the other two. Assists went to Scott Danilko, Ed Gibbons and Steve Crowe.

In net for Hartwick was Rob Crowe with Ron Telford at the other end of the ice.

Games continue tonight with Double D Catering facing Westside Jug City at 8 p.m., Home Hardware taking on Hartwick at 9 p.m. and Stamp and Times facing off at 10 p.m. Admission to the games is free.

A reminder that two all star teams drawn from the Men's Recreational Hockey League, will take to the ice Saturday night as part of the Kinsmen Winter Carnival. The game begins at 7 p.m. with a $2 admission charge. Children under 12 will be admitted free.

Times goalie Andrew Burk and Double D forward Harold Cowen (3) watch as the puck is deflected past the net during the Men's Recreational Hockey League game January 13.

Canada's 125th anniversary celebration this year

The year 1992 will see the celebration of the 125th anniversary of the Canadian Confederation. The 1989 Speech from the Throne indicated it was of the utmost importance to appropriately prepare this celebration. In this view, the Prime Minister appointed in May 1989, the Secretary of State as Lead Minister for Canada 125.

In light of the importance of 1992 for all of Canada, a national consultative conference entitled, "Towards 1992" was jointly organized in October 1989, by the Secretary of State and the Chair of the National Capital Commission. Over 400 people from all walks of life attended. This conference was designed to allow a consultation between distinguished Canadian citizens representing a wide range of activities and interests.

Following a review of the results of this conference, the Cabinet authorized in April 1990 the establishment of a Canada 125 Committee, supported by a secretariat to co-ordinate all activities pertaining to the 125th anniversary of Canada. Initial funding was ensured by the Secretary of State.

Canada 125 has evolved into a non-profit corporation, headed by two Co-Presidents and an Executive Committee.

Minden Women's Institute

Some members of Minden Women's Institute met at the Common Room on January 15th. After the usual opening a special collection was taken for the Card Fund and Pennies For Friendship as well. The pennies collected at these FWIO meetings last year were reported as $39,000.00

Irene Moore reported sending 13 cards since last meeting for a variety of occasions. A report of Subdivision 7 was given by District Director Mary Cox. Then, all joined in a "letter" quiz with Jean Cox. Later, all enjoyed the delicious snacks served by the ladies and a chat with the others.

Jackknives and Inkwells

by Kenneth C. Hone

In this week's installment of Jackknives and Inkwells, Ken Hone describes some of the lessons taught at Stanhope SS#3 during the 1950s and 1960s.

Chapter 2 - The Curriculum

Perhaps nothing points out the difference between the lessons of those days and those of today better than the difference in attitudes. Whereas today the philosophy is 'understand it', the philosophy of those days was 'learn it'. Certainly this was noticeable in the mid-fifties when lessons were driven home by rote. Endless sessions of memory work and repetition had to be gone through until we knew the work and could recite the formula parrot like. To this very day my mind only works on patterns of repetition, there is no use asking me to visualize something or get it by deduction, I need to memorize the steps. I remember hundreds of hours standing by the desk repeating, "...seven times seven is forty nine...", ad nauseam.

The day began when having shuffled and wriggled into our desks we were asked to stand again and repeat the Lord's prayer. At some time in my childhood that prayer might just have meant something to me, but by the time I'd said it a thousand times, it had no meaning any more, it was just memory work.

Following the Lord's prayer we had to sing God Save the Queen, preferably we should be gazing at the print hanging above the blackboard, that print which showed a beautiful young queen and a dashing consort. It makes me pause to remember just how really good looking that young woman was. Incredibly at that time there was a good deal of argument among a lot of Canadians and very much so among those children about which song was really our national anthem, O Canada or The Maple Leaf Forever, we sang O Canada (the old one with a lot more 'stand on guards') but I was one of those who championed The Maple Leaf Forever because my dad had come from England and I was, and would remain until about sixteen, a rabid Anglophile.

The opening exercises over with, the teacher would set out the lessons. Starting with grade one she would give assignments to all grades and then go back and work with the smallest children for half an hour and then move up and along, back and forth through the day shepherding eight grades, eight separate lesson plans. The every day textbooks were a little thin than the reference books in the library, and every other year or so a couple of dozen new texts were bought, still many were missing covers or pages.

Our subjects were very close to those of today, history, English, arithmetic (not math), science etc. but there were some differences. There were actually three types of English, reading, composition, and language, not to mention spelling. Reading began with the grade one and two Dick and Jane reader. I'll forever remember the misery of standing in a little knot at the front of the school while some less literate child actually sweated through 'Dick said "Oh Jane, see Spot run, Oh Sally see Spot run. Run Spot, run."' Later we would move on to more serious readers with stories like 'One Golden Summer' and poems like 'The Highwayman' which still thrills me. Composition was writing. Actually at first printing, with big, thick, red pencils (easier for the little hand to grasp??) then later with a good rolling hand in fountain pen. Ball points were new and innovative and not very trustworthy therefore not allowed. Every desk had an ink well from which you filled your fountain pen, trying not to drip it on your masterpiece. When you made a mistake in fountain pen you had a little bottle of liquid that was a kind of bleach which eradicated the mistake. It was called ink eradicator. The ink wells were a fine source of amusement on a long afternoon. Of course woe to the girl who sat ahead of the mischievous boy, for she might find her hair dipped into the ink. The schoolroom buzzed with flies in the spring, and my ink well became a soggy graveyard of insects. A veritable slaughter would go on for hours as the bloated bodies in my ink well attested to my prowess as a fly catcher. My love of English came early and never left me or let me down and my compositions were constantly marked in the nineties. In the third class of English I was only competent. Language meant defining the types of words, arranging them into verbs, subjects, predicates, modifiers, adjectives etc. An ingenious system had been devised of underlining with one, two or three lines, bracketing with square or round brackets and wavy lines to classify the words in a sentence and their relationship to each other. In an earlier time this activity had been termed 'parsing' and it never really caught on with me. I've never been one for dissecting beauty.

I'm not sure what part music plays in today's curriculum, but that educational system was obsessed with it. I guess it was a simpler time. At any rate, we had music one whole morning a week, three solid hours of it. Mr. Hussey had I think four schools to attend to and when it came time for music festivals, I wonder how he maintained and impartiality. We all knew that he loved us best though, how could he not, we loved him. Mr. Hussey was a handsome man with snow white, prematurely gray hair and dapper manners, but he was gentle and considerate. He was a hard taskmaster at music but he never asked more than we could give and we always wanted to give more. Music covered types of instruments, notation and actual singing. Often we would spend two hours going over the pieces we would sing at the upcoming concert or festival. The pressure was tremendous. The soloists stood beside the piano while the maestro played, his fingers never faltering, and the metronome ticked on top of the piano and the whole school was hushed. The choir was arranged at the back of the school room, only the best took part, maybe half of the whole school enrolment. We were arraigned thus, soprano's down front, mezzo's back of them, alto's further back and bass's at the back standing on a bench or on books piled up. When Mr. Hussey wasn't playing the piano he would stand in front of us while we sang 'a capella'. It was in these sessions that I learned what a conductor did, and how important he was. God the singing, I wish I could hear it again. 'The Ash Grove', 'Isle of Beauty', 'Lovely Moon', and in the lighter more relaxed vein, 'John Peel', 'Dinah', 'Old Black Joe' and 'Polly-Wolly Doodle'. One of those boys grew up to become a music teacher himself. We learned about music in that schoolhouse.

History was well grounded in the old country, England. We spent much more time in that system studying about ancient British history. From out of the mists of time with Boadicea Queen of the Britons right up to Wolfe and Montcalm at the plains of Abraham. Wolfe won. French Canada was a semi-mythical place like Egypt, or China, Canada at that time was truly 'two solitudes'. Our flag was the Union Jack. It flew from our flag pole along with the flag of our province, Ontario. We knew what composed the flag, the crosses of St. George for England, St. Andrew for Scotland and St. Patrick for Ireland. In the words of the song it was 'The thistle, shamrock, rose entwined, the Maple Leaf Forever'.

We spent a lot of time on spelling. If you knew how many corrections had gone into this little book, you'd wonder that I ever studied spelling, but I did. We had spelling books with a dozen new words per lesson, and here again while there were rules to fall back upon, a lot of it was memory work. To make things more fun we had spelling bees. The whole school would divide into two teams and line up on either side of the classroom, big kids and little, while the teacher called words from a variety of spellers on the desk. She would call simple words from the lower grade spellers for the little kids and tougher words from the higher grade spellers for the older kids. If you missed a word you had to sit down. It would get pretty tense with only two or three still standing on each side.

Exams were nerve wracking, at least for some of us. I know they still are for kids today, but I wonder if ours weren't more so. We had little tests all along through the year but they didn't seem to count as much as the finals. We had three sets of exams a year, Christmas, Easter and just before school let out in June. The passing mark was always fifty percent. Fifty percent was a pass, forty-nine percent was a fail, I repeat FAIL. The result of laziness was failure. The whole year had to be gone over. I believe it took me ten years to do eight grades but others were luckier and others less fortunate. There was no such thing as skipping grades. There was no such thing as not writing an exam. In some newer Bibles 'Lead us not into temptation' is translated as 'Bring us not to the test', pretty much my attitude to exams.

Some environmental good news

Good news is rare on the environmental front these days. But from the holiday season, here is a story involving one of the most fascinating creatures on Earth that suggests there is still enormous resilience and potential for recovery in the natural world - if we give it the chance.

I'm writing this on a surf battered beach on St. Miguel Island in the Channel Islands National Park about 40 kilometers off the California coast and 140 kilometers north of Los Angeles. Yet even this close to a huge human population, there are hundreds of California sea lions and northern fur seals around me.

More sparsely interspersed are dozens of immense animals that look like whales compared to the others. They are northern elephant seals, the first of tens of thousands that will cover the beaches by next month.

These massive animals may reach up to five meters in length and a big male can weigh in at 2,000 kilograms. But the most striking feature of the species is an immense nose on the males that seems like a parody of a tapir's proboscis. When a male rears up aggressively, it towers above our heads and inflates its nose as an awesome threat display. Giving out a barrage of bellows, hisses, belches and honks, males and females give plenty of warning to stay well clear from their potentially dangerous sharp teeth.

Scientists Brent Stewart and Bob DeLong filled me in on some of the incredible features of elephant seal biology. They track the animals with radio transmitters while high-tech micro-processors glued to the skin record depth, light and temperature at minute intervals for four months.

Since the animals return to San Miguel to shed their skin, the researchers have a high recovery rate of their recording

Reflections

by David Suzuki

instruments. What they find is truly mind boggling. Twice a year, the males migrate twice from southern California to Alaska - that's 10,000 kilometers round trip!

Even more astonishing is the pattern of diving that is revealed by the recorders. While elephant seals can stay submerged for over an hour, they dive for an average of 22 minutes, to depths exceeding 1,500 meters, and spend a quarter of their dive foraging for squid.

There is no surface light at such great depths, but bioluminescence of the deep sea creatures themselves can be captured by the immense eyes and supersensitive retinas of the seals. After surfacing from a deep dive, an elephant seal reinflates its lungs for a couple of minutes then dives again, repeating this around the clock for weeks on end!

I've barely begun to relate the astonishing traits of these fascinating animals. Now here's what makes this a happy story.

Immense middens on St. Miguel reveal that aboriginal people took elephant seals in large numbers as far back as 11,000 years. No one knows how extensive the original northern elephant seal populations were and the only guess I've seen advanced is perhaps 25,000.

What we do know is that they were easy prey for the harpoons and guns of Europeans who soon recognized their worth as sources of oil. Whalers slaughtered them and simply mixed elephant seal and whale oil.

By 1869, northern elephant seals were "as good as extinct" for commercial purposes. Their rarity merely stimulated collecting expeditions for museums that wanted specimens before they vanished.

Thus, in 1891, a party sent by the Smithsonian Institution discovered eight elephant seals at Guadalupe off the Baha and promptly killed seven of them in the full knowledge that they might be among the last of their kind on the Earth. Again, no one knows how low the population got, but estimates range from less than a few hundred to a few hundred.

Now comes the remarkable part. Shielded by the their relative inaccessibility, by wildlife protection laws and by the fact that they don't compete directly for prey with humans, the northern elephant seal began a spectacular comeback.

Today their population stands at 130,000, a number some suggest could be approaching their original levels. And it's not just elephant seals. Northern fur seals were so heavily hunted that by 1835, they were considered extinct. Then in 1969 when Bob DeLong came to St. Miguel to do research for his Phd, he discovered 100 females, 36 pups and one mature male. Their numbers too have exploded and last year, 1,100 California sea lions, 13,000 elephant seals and over 1,000 harbor seals were born on St. Miguel!

It is inspiring to realize that here in the most heavily populated part of North America, where the waters are dotted with offshore oil platforms as well as commercial and sport fishermen, pleasure boats and transport ships, the ocean remains rich enough to support these expanding populations of impressive marine mammals. Perhaps we can share the planet with our biological relatives.

I hope so.

TV weather reporters face sled dog challenge

Everyone talks about it, and now the people who organize the Minden Sled Dog Derby are trying to do something about it.

The derby fell victim to the whims of the weather two weekends ago when warm temperatures and rain all but washed out what little snow was on the ground. The organizers quickly regrouped around new dates, February 15 and 16. However, to help bring as much effort as possible to bear on the weather, the organizers have asked the television weather forecasters of the province to lend their talents to ensuring the postponed event has more than ample snow.

The forecasters have been invited to submit their prognostications for weather conditions for 10 a.m. Saturday February 15, the time when the opening ceremonies will be just getting underway.

"Of course we're looking for lots of snow and cold temperatures for that weekend," race Governor Val Lougheed commented, "And we're hoping the forecasters, who are closest to the weather, might be able to find us the ideal conditions we are looking for."

Lougheed realizes there is little the television weather personalities can do about the climate, but she hopes the competition will help generate some additional publicity for the race and just maybe, forestall any adverse weather heading toward the community that weekend.

The forecasters must mail their predictions to the race organizers at least a week in advance. They must include a number of specific readings including temperature, sky conditions, wind speed and direction among others. The forecasts will be compared with the actual conditions at 10 a.m. Saturday morning and the report which is closest to the weather at the time will receive a package of Sled Dog Derby souvenirs and paraphernalia.

Invitations to participate in the weather forecast competition have been sent to thirteen television weather forecasters in Ontario.

CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF STANHOPE

PUBLIC NOTICE

TAKENOTICE that the Council of the Municipal Corporation of the Township of Stanhope, proposes to enact a by-law to stop-up, close and convey to the abutting property owners parts of the shore road allowance set out and described as follows:

FIRSTLY: All and Singular those certain parcels or tracts of land and premises situate, lying and being in the Township of Stanhope in the County of Haliburton and being composed of part of the 66' original shore road allowance around Boshkung Lake lying in front of Lot 12 Concession 1 being more particularly described as Parts 2 and 3 on Plan 19R 3710 deposited in the Registry Office for the Registry Division of the County of Haliburton.

THE PROPOSED BY-LAW will come before the said council for consideration at its regular meeting at the Municipal Office in the Township of Stanhope on the 12th day of February, 1992 at the hour of 11:30 A.M., and at that time, the council will hear in person or by his/her counsel, solicitor or agent any person who claims that his land will be prejudicially affected and who applies to be heard.

by Jeanne Sears (call 286-1538)

Winners of the weekly Monday afternoon euchres at St. Pauls on January 13 included for lone hands: Joan MacKenzie, and others Margaret Green, Helen Skelding, Jack Chilton and Frances Carter and 50/50 winner was Marie Dennis. They plan to have a luncheon followed by euchres on January 27th starting at 12 noon.

Bill, Julie and Meighan Woolfrey of Bridgenorth were recent guests with Bob and Audrey Vick.

There are many people not feeling well and included are Gladys Dugan, Kit Chroter, Myrtle Walker (home), Mrs. Joe Graham, (home) Helen Stott, Jean Lacey, Wayne Anderson, Lloyd Johnston, Mabel Russell and Arnold Cowen with good wishes going to all.

Cancellations were on the slate on Tuesday with the bad store, with no Rotary Bingo and no euchres at Gelert Centre that night so that next euchres on Tuesday night will be a Lochlin Centre on January 21.

Sincere sympathy goes to the families and friends of the late Evelyn Robertson and Fred Houghton who passed away since last week.

Ken and Carol Cox, and girls and Mary Cox spent Sunday visiting with Jack and Ethel Cowan and family at Phelpston.

Not much news this week, if we miss your items remember to phone early in week, and leave your number for a call-back as I have an answering machine with a fun message.

Coming events are Wednesday, January 22, at 7:30 at Minden Legion is it's first Trivia Fun night with ridiculous questions and answers. Next County Town Museum meeting is at Library Culture Centre, Wednesday, January 29th at 10 a.m.

There was the Hi-low doubles Walker Old Special Bowling Tournament at Fenelon Lanes Sunday, January 12 with 18 teams and 3 from Carnarvon Bowl included. Gord Martin and Jeanne Simms took 1st with plus 172 over average, Marlene Robinson and M. Barry took 4th with plus 113 and Marie Thompson and J. Sears took 5th with plus 105. These were the three teams from Carnarvon and congratulations to them. Everyone received a prize and Martin and Simms go to Hamilton in the next level of competition on February 29th. Good luck goes with you for great games.

The following was submitted by Florence Robinson. My Thoughts: I woke up early one morning and was feeling really blue and I said to myself why should I get up, there is nothing this day I can do. Why should I bother to get out of bed, on days like this I wish I were dead. I'm sure I can not walk a mile and visiting seems to have gone out of style. Then I happened to think of the lovely hymn, "this is the day the Lord hath made, let us rejoice and be glad" and I thought well I better get out of bed and not lie around feeling sad. Maybe I can phone a friend or else I can write a letter, if I do something nice for some one else, maybe I'll feel a lot better.

Winners of the Club 35 euchre held January 13 are: 50-50: Ken Wallace. Most Lone Hands: Murray MacKinnon. High Lady: Thelda Weston. High Man: Bill Cowan. Others: Norma Sisson, Garth Windsor, Bill Cowen.

Winners of the Legion Branch 636 on January 16 were: Lone Hands: May Bradbury and Norman Lee. High Score: Jim Bradbury and Helen Lee. Others: George Hewitt, Jean Hewitt, Leitha Kuchelema, Marg McAfee, Willard Bridgman, Gladys Wruth.

Gospel Church ladies host tea

I am starting this column on Wednesday, January 8, 1992. During the holidays, the time seemed pretty mixed up but it will soon be back to normal.

Wednesday afternoon, in the craft room, we had quilters making a quilt, others making crafts and several having a "Who Am I?" session. While doing this the county officials, who were making a tour of Hyland

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

Crest, stopped briefly to enquire about our activities.

At our usual Thursday tea party, the ladies of the Minden Gospel Church provided the tea and small program for our enjoyment. The ladies were Marion Fisher, Lenora Prentice, Denise Stringer, Desneiges Laws, Elizabeth Carrel and Beth Fast. Mrs. Fast led a program with two solos by herself, a demo illustration of different kinds of hugs and a couple of readings followed by a very delicious tea. Thank you ladies, we enjoyed it very much.

Congratulations to Alice Todd who has celebrated a birthday on Thursday, January 9. Happy Birthday Alice.

Thursday evening Nancy and Troy Briggs came to the auditorium to conduct our evening of Bingo.

January 10th the Minden Line Dancers entertained the Happy Hour with line dancing and singing (Doris played the piano). Bonnie Fullan, Mary Guillemin, Janke Thomas and Don and Ellen Holden were volunteers, serving the residents and their guests as the need arose. Hyland Crest gratefully thanks them for an enjoyable afternoon.

Friday evening Bill Payne was here to give us an old fashioned program of music and old songs in the Trillium Lounge. Everyone enjoyed it immensely and thanks him sincerely.

Several residents had visitors both Saturday and Sunday.

Rev. John Burgess held the Sunday night Chapel Service. Alice Jones was absent due to a sickness in the family. Thank you Rev. Burgess.

"My daughter means the world to me."

That's why I like to take her places and show her new things. I'm trying to teach her that people are basically the same. That way, she can learn to be considerate of others. I also try to teach her by being a good example. I recently preplanned funeral services. That way she won't have to worry about making those arrangements for me. Preplanning is considerate, and it's just one way I can show her how much I love her.

CARDS OF THANKS

Sincere thanks to everyone for the cards, food, phone calls and kindness shown at the time of our loss. Everything was most appreciated.

Maurice Cooper

Many thanks to all the merchants, contractors, individuals, the public, trappers and all the people who helped us have a successful day.
Minden District Trappers Council 1C

To everyone who phoned or sent cards during my hospital stay and to my family for all their help and rides for Jean to visit me. To Helen and Al Hartwick for the ride home from Toronto. You're all very special. Thanks
Ivan Ingram Sr.

CARDS OF THANKS

Thank you Lil and Jim for donating Medley's Dance Hall on Monday, January 13, 1992. Your kindness allowed us to fulfil our friend's final wish. Thank you to all supporting people, you are lovely! To Bob - thank you for your many examples toward love of family, community and much more. To Joy and Jojo - Peace!

Heather, Jaklin, Jenny, Paul and Doug

HOUGHTON, FRED

- suddenly at his residence on Sunday, January 12, 1992, in his 63rd year. Beloved husband of Agnes, dear father of Fred and his wife Darlene, Bill and his wife Julie, Gord and his wife Jackie, Patricia and her husband Rod and predeceased by Jack, dear son of Irene Houghton, loving grandfather of Jimmy, Nancy, Deanna, Jenny, Chris, Jeff, John, Kristina and Tina and one great grandchild. Rested at the Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home, Minden on Tuesday. Complete service was held in the chapel on Wednesday, January 15 at 11:00 a.m. Spring interment Maple Lake United Church Cemetery. Memorial donations to the Heart and Stroke Foundation would be appreciated.

IN MEMORIAM

HEWITT: In loving memory of a dear son and brother "Sterling" taken from us eighteen years ago. January 19, 1974. The month of January is here again, To us the saddest of all the year, The blow was hard, the shock severe, To part with one we loved so dear. Lovingly remembered always by Mom, brother, sisters, nieces and nephews.

SAWYER: In loving memory of my dad Elmer Sawyer. Your resting place we tend with care, And have a chat while we are there, Beautiful memories you gave us to keep, The very day you fell asleep. All who know you - kind words they say, Us who loved you - miss you each day. Nelson and Betty Dionne

LYONS, Charles. Passed away January 21, 1991. Beloved husband of Pat, fondly remembered by Lindsay, David, Niky and Brittany. "Always in my heart"

CREGO, Albert, in loving memory of my dear husband who passed away January 23, 1991. Sunshine fades and shadows fall, But sweet remembrance outlast all. Sadly missed by his wife, Vi.
